Competition or Conflict in Sino-American Relations?

With a potential “power transition” underway between the US and China, can the two sides insure that cooperation is the dominant force in their relationship? Or will the line taken by the Trump Administration lead to greater conflict? Where are the key points of cooperation and conflict?

Zweig will look at this issue from the international, regional, and bi-lateral levels, as well as trying to include the qualities of the two leaders, and their goals for their respective countries, in the mix.

THE LECTURE WILL TAKE PLACE ON

Thursday 20.4.17 · 14:30-16:00

At Abba Eban conference hall, Truman Institute
